Executive Summary

Uncertainty reigned over risk assets in Q2. It began with President Trump's announcement of a new tariff regime, sending equities tumbling. Weeks later, an announced pause in the imposition of tariffs prompted a "risk-on" rally that saw investment grade credit spreads rally to cyclical highs and the Treasury curve steepen. Hard and soft data on the economy and inflation diverged and the Federal Reserve ("the Fed") left rates unchanged, concerned that tariffs could keep inflation elevated even as a solid employment market provided no prompt to reduce from the upper bound of 4.5%. Against this backdrop, the Victory Short-Term Fixed Income Strategy outperformed its benchmark, the Bloomberg 1-3 Year Credit Index, for the quarter ended June 30, 2025, on a gross and net basis.

Market Update & Commentary

The second quarter of 2025 started with a bang when President Trump announced an expansive new tariff regime on April 2. While tariffs had been promised on the campaign trail and were therefore not entirely unexpected, their magnitude and sweeping application rocked risk assets, sending them downward swiftly and deeply. They recovered sharply only a few weeks later when the president announced that the highest tariffs would be paused.

May brought the final downgrade from AAA to U.S. debt by Moody's, but the market's reaction was muted. Moody's cited the potentially unsustainable fiscal trajectory as a rationale for the downgrade. Credit spreads barely reacted because this was hardly news to anyone. Overall, credit spreads have remained very low and are pricing in a benign economic environment despite the volatility in the equity markets. Short-term yields decreased throughout the quarter, while long-term yields increased on the future of U.S. fiscal policy arising from the push to pass a budget before July 4.

The divergence between hard data, such as inflation measures and corporate earnings, and the soft data, such as inflation expectations and consumer survey data, is further evidence, in our view, of the high degree of economic uncertainty. The YoY Consumer Price Index (CPI) held quarter-over-quarter at 2.4%, while the unemployment rate fell from 4.2% at the end of Q1 to 4.1% at the end of Q2. In the end, hopes for the Fed to cut interest rates fell from four cuts to between two and three in 2025 as the Fed increasingly signaled a wait-and-see approach, weighing firm employment against expectations of weaker consumer spending on the application of tariffs.

Between April's equity sell-off and the continuing uncertainty regarding the direction of fiscal policy, we believe fixed income offers investors' portfolios ballast and improved diversification in a volatile equity market. Despite credit spreads near 25-year lows, positive real yields offer attractive earning potential.

Portfolio Performance & Positioning

During the quarter, we increased our allocation to Treasuries and cash, and decreased corporates and asset-backed securities (ABS).

Contributors

- Best performers relative to the index were tobacco, leisure, brokerage & asset managers, health insurance, and real estate investment trusts (REITs).
- From a credit perspective, relative to the index, BBB, high yield, and single-A bonds provided the best performance.

- Allocation and selection added 11 bps to performance.
- Duration added 8 bps to performance.

Detractors

- Sectors that detracted from performance relative to the index included chemicals, taxable municipal bonds, consumer cyclical, collateralized mortgage obligations (CMOs), and diversified manufacturing.
- From a credit perspective, relative to the index, AAA and AA bonds contributed the least to performance.

Past performance cannot guarantee future results. Returns for periods greater than one year are annualized. Returns are expressed in U.S. dollars and reflect the reinvestment of dividends and other earnings. Performance prior to July 1, 2019, occurred while the team was affiliated with a prior firm. The investment management team has managed the composite strategy since inception and the investment process has not changed. Composite and benchmark returns are presented net of non-reclaimable withholding taxes. Gross-of-fees returns are presented before management and custodial fees but after all trading expenses. The composite net-of-fees returns shown reflect actual investment management fees. Actual fees may vary depending on, among other things, the applicable fee schedule and portfolio size. The firm's fees are available on request and may be found on Part 2A of its Form ADV.

All investments carry a certain degree of risk, including the possible loss of principal, and an investment should be made with an understanding of the risks involved with owning a particular security or asset class.

The Victory Short-Term Fixed Income Composite includes all institutional and retail portfolios invested primarily in a broad range of debt securities that have a dollar-weighted average portfolio maturity of three years or less. The debt securities in which the composite portfolio may invest include, among others, obligations of U.S., state, and local governments, their agencies and instrumentalities; mortgage- and asset-backed securities; corporate debt securities; repurchase agreements; and other securities believed to have debt-like characteristics. The strategy aims to deliver high current income without undue risk to principal. Portfolios in the composite will invest primarily in investment-grade securities, but also may invest in below investment-grade securities, which are sometimes referred to as high-yield or “junk” bonds. High yield bonds carry increased levels of credit and default risk and are less liquid than government and investment grade bonds. Beginning September 1st, 2023, the minimum account size for the composite is $25 Million. The composite creation date is July 2019, and the composite inception date is July 1993. The benchmark of the composite is the Bloomberg 1-3 Year Credit Index. Prior to 4/24/2023, the name of this composite was the USAA Short-Term Bond Fixed Income Composite.

The benchmark of the composite is the Bloomberg 1-3 Year Credit Index. The Bloomberg 1-3 Year Credit Index measures the performance of U.S. dollar denominated investment grade debt publicly issued in the U.S. domestic market, including U.S. Treasury, U.S. agency, foreign government, supranational, and corporate securities) including all securities with a remaining term to final maturity less than 3 years. The benchmark returns are provided to represent the investment environment existing during the time periods shown and are not covered by the report of independent verifiers. For comparison purposes, the index is fully invested, which includes the reinvestment of income. The returns have been taken from a published source and do not include any transaction fees, management fees, or other costs.

Index returns are provided to represent the investment environment during the periods shown. Index performance does not reflect management fees, transaction costs or expenses that would be incurred with an investment. One cannot invest directly in an index. Past performance does not guarantee future results.

Information relating to portfolio holdings is based on the representative account in the composite and may vary for other accounts in the strategy due to asset size, client guidelines and other factors. The representative account is believed to most closely reflect the current portfolio management style.
